

Fall 2017
Course

This is a fascinating and important course for any student of LING, PSYC, CPSC, PHIL, ANTH, BIOL, EDUC, and more!

LINGUISTICS 331 FIRST LANGUAGE ACQUISITION

Language is what makes humans unique, and its development in children is rather spectacular. Interesting pathologies aside, all individuals fully develop the system behind each home language—its patterns of sound, meaning and grammar, and how these interact. Remarkably, too, the course of acquisition is strikingly uniform, not only across individuals acquiring the same language, but even across languages. Want to learn more? Register in LING 331.

Pre-requisites: LING 201 or PSYC 200

Due to high demand, two sections will be offered this fall:

L01: TR | 2-3:15 pm | S. Carroll

L02: MWF | 1-1:50 pm | D. Skordos
