Land Acknowledgment

The University of Calgary resides upon the traditional territories of the people of the Treaty 7 region in Southern Alberta, which includes the Blackfoot Confederacy (comprising the Siksika, Piikani, and Kainai First Nations), the Tsuut’ina First Nation, and the Stoney Nakoda (including the Chiniki, Bearspaw, and Wesley First Nations). The City of Calgary is also home to Métis Nation of Alberta, Region III. The University of Calgary is situated on land adjacent to where the Bow River meets the Elbow River, and that the traditional Blackfoot name of this place is “Moh’kins’tsis”, which we now call the City of Calgary.

\textit{ii’taa’poh’to’p}, the Blackfoot name of the University of Calgary’s Indigenous Strategy, was bestowed and transferred in ceremony by Kainai Elder, Andy Black Water on June 21, 2017. The name signifies a place to rejuvenate and re-energize while on a journey. Traditionally, these places are recognized as safe, caring, restful - and offer renewed energy for an impending journey. In a traditional naming ceremony, transitioning into the new name is a journey of transformation towards self-actualization.

Course Description

This course looks into a number of texts by contemporary writers from the Muslim diaspora. The texts focus on experiences of immigration, displacement and growing up brown in North America and Europe. Not all the authors are believers or practitioners of Islam, but their work is influenced by Islamicate cultural heritage and traditions. The texts are all written in English, except for \textit{Persepolis} which was originally written in French.

This class is discussion heavy, and it is important that you come to class having read the assigned readings.

Objectives and Outcomes

The main objectives of this course are, for students to:

- To become acquainted with the diverse range of contemporary Literature by writers from the Muslim diaspora
- To understand the range of cultural nuances of various Muslim diasporic cultures
- To evaluate texts in comparative terms
- To formulate their analysis of a text using multiple sources and theories
- To compose essays demonstrating their understanding of a text through close reading

To arrive at these objectives, students are asked to think about the following questions while reading the texts required for each session:

Course Notes

All assignments must be submitted to Dropbox on D2L. The assignments must be submitted in word or Pdf format. Please keep in mind that it is your responsibility to make sure you have access to D2L and to solve any technical issues you may have.

If you need extension on any of the deadlines, make sure to let the instructor know at least two weeks in advance of the deadline (this does not apply to cases of medical or personal distress).
Participation/Discussion:

This course is discussion heavy, which means that your presence in the class is required. The criteria for class participation grades include:

- Preparedness in having read assigned readings before class
- Reasonable frequency and quality of valuable and constructive participation in class discussions and debates
- Quality of analysis and contribution when speaking or asking questions in class

It is recommended that you place a clearly readable nametag in front of you during class sessions, so that the instructor can better associate your name with your participation and give you the participation grades you deserve.

Quizzes:

Quizzes are multiple choice questions that are handed out at the beginning of the session and cover the readings for that session plus any previous readings. The first one is on February 4, 2020. The second quiz is on March 31, 2020.

Reflection Papers:

You are required to write two reflection papers on two of the texts listed in the course timetable. You decide which of the texts you would like to write your reflection papers on. The papers should be two pages, double-spaced, with Times New Roman size 12 font, one inch margin on all sides and not less than 400, or more than 500 words. Each paper makes up for 10% of your grade. Each of your reflection papers should be submitted online through D2L’s dropbox section. You should submit your first reflection paper no later than February 13, 2020 (11:59 pm) and your second one no later than April 7, 2020 (11:59 pm).

Final Paper:

You are required to write a paper on a topic of your choice (but still based on one or more of the texts discussed in class). It is highly recommended that you check the appropriateness of your chosen topic with the instructor through email before writing on it. The final paper has to have at least one primary and three secondary academic sources. The primary source is a literary text that is the main subject of analysis, and secondary sources are any academic works that you use to strengthen your argument, for example by providing evidence, historical context, or theoretical frameworks. If you are confused about the acceptability of a secondary source, contact instructor.

Students are encouraged to start thinking about their subject for the final essay as soon as possible and discuss their ideas with the instructor if they are unsure. The deadline for setting your topic and submitting your final paper proposal and literature review is March 24. Suggested topics are available on D2L. Instruction on writing a proposal are also available on D2L.

The final paper should be between 1250 to 1750 words. This is approximately between 5 to 7 pages, double-spaced, Times New Roman size 12 font, with one inch margins on all sides. This paper makes for 35% of your grade and is due on April 21, 2020. If for any reason you need an extension, you should notify me by email before the assignment is due, any such requests sent after the deadline will not be granted. Extensions are only given once and cannot be renegotiated. The penalty for late submission of assignments is 5% of the grade per day. Papers submitted more than five days later than the due date will receive “0”.

The essays are graded based on the rubric that is available on D2L.

This course does not have a final exam.
Course Technology

Students are welcome to bring portable word processing devices (tablets, laptops, airbooks, Acer, anything you got) to take notes in class. Using your device to go online for any reason – unless the instructor gives you direction to do so for class-related purposes – is prohibited and may result in having your privileges to use your device in class revoked and/or you being removed from the class. See the Student Code of Conduct Agreement for more details.

A D2L portal has been set up for this course that allows for group correspondence, course announcements, class materials, assignment submissions and grading, and other forms of communication. Students are expected to check D2L before class time for any last minute changes or cancellations. D2L only uses @ucalgary email addresses.

Student-Instructor Communication

Appropriate communication procedures are described in detail in the Student Code of Conduct Agreement. The instructor’s preferred means of communication is first by scheduled office hours, then by a pre-arranged meeting time (only if the professor’s office hours conflict with another course), and then by email.

The instructor will endeavor to respond to emails within three business days after receiving the message. If the student emails a question that is fully addressed by the syllabus, Student Code of Conduct, or posted on D2L, the instructor will not reply. Therefore, if you don’t receive a response within three business days, that probably means you can find the answer somewhere yourself. The instructor may respond to your email query with the request that you come meet with them in person to discuss. Please note, that the university’s regular business hours are 8:30-4:30, Monday through Friday and excludes recognized holidays. See the Academic Schedule for more details: https://ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/academic-schedule.html

Children in Class:

All exclusively breastfeeding babies are welcome in class as often as it is needed and the parent is welcome to nurse however is best for baby.

It is understood that occasionally childcare arrangements for toddlers and older children can fall through, and therefore you may bring your child to class. There is no need to inform the instructor beforehand. Bringing the child to class should be a last resort, not a permanent solution. If the child is sick, it is preferable that they do not come to class.

In all cases when a student brings a child to class, you must make every effort to arrive to class early, sit near the back and by a door, so that the child is settled before class begins. If they need attention or are disrupting the class, you can easily step outside with them. Once the child is settled again, you are most welcome to return to class.

Other students are asked not to interrupt the parent or attempt to draw the child’s attention as this can end up being very disruptive and may upset the child (not to mention the parent!)

ACADEMIC MISCONDUCT

1. Plagiarism is a serious offence, the penalty for which is an F on the assignment and possibly also an F in the course, academic probation, or requirement to withdraw. Plagiarism exists when:
   a) the work submitted or presented was done, in whole or in part, by an individual other than the one submitting or presenting the work (this includes having another impersonate the student or otherwise substituting the work of another for one’s own in an examination or test);
   b) parts of the work are taken from another source without reference to the original author;
Faculty of Arts
School of Languages, Linguistics, Literatures and Cultures

c) the whole work (e.g., an essay) is copied from another source, and/or
d) a student submits or presents work in one course which has also been submitted in another course (although it may be completely original with that student) without the knowledge of or prior agreement of the instructor involved.

While it is recognized that scholarly work often involves reference to the ideas, data and conclusions of other scholars, intellectual honesty requires that such references be explicitly and clearly noted.”

Plagiarism occurs not only when direct quotations are taken from a source without specific acknowledgement but also when original ideas or data from the source are not acknowledged. A bibliography is insufficient to establish which portions of the student’s work are taken from external sources; footnotes or other recognized forms of citation must be used for this purpose.

2. Cheating at tests or examinations includes but is not limited to dishonest or attempted dishonest conduct such as speaking to other candidates or communicating with them under any circumstances whatsoever; bringing into the examination room any textbook, notebook, memorandum, other written material or mechanical or electronic device not authorized by the examiner; writing an examination or part of it, or consulting any person or materials outside the confines of the examination room without permission to do so, or leaving answer papers exposed to view, or persistent attempts to read other students’ examination papers.

3. Other academic misconduct includes, but is not limited to, tampering or attempts to tamper with examination scripts, class work, grades and/or class records; failure to abide by directions by an instructor regarding the individuality of work handed in; the acquisition, attempted acquisition, possession, and/or distribution of examination materials or information not authorized by the instructor; the impersonation of another student in an examination or other class assignment; the falsification or fabrication of clinical or laboratory reports; the non-authorized tape recording of lectures.

4. Any student who voluntarily and consciously aids another student in the commission of one of these offences is also guilty of academic misconduct.
