DESCRIPTION

This course is a concise introduction to the scientific study of human language (Linguistics). Throughout the semester we will explore language as a system that pairs form (signs) and meaning (content) and is shaped both by its function as a means of communication and by features of the human mind/brain that guide its acquisition and use.

OBJECTIVES

The aim of the course is for students to achieve a level of theoretical understanding of concepts and levels of analysis in linguistics that will permit them to attend a variety of higher-level linguistics courses. Moreover, students are expected to acquire the basic background knowledge and develop the skills necessary for elementary linguistic analysis. To do that we will perform analyses on linguistic data from a variety of languages. Students will have an opportunity to hone their critical thinking skills and, in the process, they might also come to reconsider some commonly held beliefs about language.

OUTCOMES

Students will acquire a good understanding of basic terminology and theoretical concepts in linguistics. They will develop the skills necessary to perform a basic linguistic analysis of simple datasets from different languages and reach evidence-based and theory-informed conclusions about how a given language seems to be structured and behave in certain linguistic environments.

Any accommodation, for late assignments, or missing the midterm will only be considered in cases where sufficient documentation of an unavoidable circumstance of sufficient gravity is provided. Please see the syllabus for an exhaustive list of class policies and expectations.

ACADEMIC MISCONDUCT

1. Plagiarism is a serious offence, the penalty for which is an F on the assignment and possibly also an F in the course, academic probation, or requirement to withdraw. Plagiarism exists when:
   a) the work submitted or presented was done, in whole or in part, by an individual other than the one submitting or presenting the work (this includes having another impersonate the student or otherwise substituting the work of another for one's own in an examination or test);
   b) parts of the work are taken from another source without reference to the original author;
   c) the whole work (e.g., an essay) is copied from another source, and/or
   d) a student submits or presents work in one course which has also been submitted in another course (although it may be completely original with that student) without the knowledge of or prior agreement of the instructor involved.

   While it is recognized that scholarly work often involves reference to the ideas, data and conclusions of other scholars, intellectual honesty requires that such references be explicitly and clearly noted.”

   Plagiarism occurs not only when direct quotations are taken from a source without specific acknowledgement but also when original ideas or data from the source are not acknowledged. A bibliography is insufficient to establish which portions of the student’s work are taken from external sources; footnotes or other recognized forms of citation must be used for this purpose.

2. Cheating at tests or examinations includes but is not limited to dishonest or attempted dishonest conduct such as speaking to other candidates or communicating with them under any circumstances whatsoever; bringing into the examination room any textbook, notebook, memorandum, other written material or mechanical or electronic device not authorized by the examiner; writing an examination or part of it, or consulting any person or materials outside the confines of the examination room without permission to do so, or leaving answer papers exposed to view, or persistent attempts to read other students’ examination papers.

3. Other academic misconduct includes, but is not limited to, tampering or attempts to tamper with examination scripts, class work, grades and/or class records; failure to abide by directions by an instructor regarding the individuality of work handed in; the acquisition, attempted acquisition, possession, and/or distribution of examination materials or information not authorized by the instructor; the impersonation of another student in an examination or other class assignment; the falsification or fabrication of clinical or laboratory reports; the non-authorized tape recording of lectures.

4. Any student who voluntarily and consciously aids another student in the commission of one of these offences is also guilty of academic misconduct.
